Types of Broadband

There are a few main types of Broadband to cover most people's needs, they all have different features and limitations, so they need to be considered carefully before choosing a supplier.

DSL (Digital Subscriber Line)

DSL is the most common type of broadband connection and is delivered through your existing phone line. Unfortunately it requires a good quality phone line, a local exchange to be 'available' and you need to be located within a certain distance from the exchange. This makes it quite limited and is not really an effective solution for those of us in rural areas.

Cable

If you already have cable TV then you live in an area served by a cable operator. You will need a special modem to run alongside your TV box, and the operator will often bundle the cost of the TV and Broadband connections together in a neat, effective package.

Satellite

Satellite is generally considered to be the last resort for people living in remote areas. It requires the installation of a special satellite dish and modem, and the equipment and line rentals are often extremely expensive.

Wireless

Wireless Broadband is the choice of Westnet, it provides a high speed and robust connection across vast areas and does not require a telephone line of any kind.

We also offer a 'hybrid' connection, offering the same speed when you are stationary in townships, camping and overall better user experience.

But, is it for me?
Yes, of course. It's for everybody!
By listing in the directory you can now advertise your business in Mayo for free.

Benefits of listing on MayoFree.com
One of the main benefits of advertising on the internet is that it is available to access 24 hours a day, every day, all year. Visitors can find out about your business even when you are not working, in the evenings or at the weekends.
An advert in a newspaper is a one shot deal, for the one time that it is printed and distributed, and relies on the fact that the reader might want what you are offering at that particular time. For example, selling fur coats in a summer heatwave might not produce a very good response.
Directories like the Golden Pages are much better, but it costs so much to have a decent sized advert and you can't say very much in it anyway, and these things can outweigh the response that you get from them.
On the web though, space isn't too much of a problem, you can say as much as you like and really sell your business. It reaches the people that are actually looking for your services, either by browsing the web or specifically searching for the terms and phrases in Google like 'Baling Contractor Mayo' etc.
If this was free, wouldn't everyone be doing it?

What can I do with my listing?
The directory facility is really quite well featured, and means that you can do just about anything you might need to do with a simple web page. Take a look at the listing of Infrini Mixed Media as an example.

- You can add your business name, which is up to 35 characters
